

Apartment landlords expected to pass along Prop. 13 savings

By Don Green

The president of the area's apartment association is confident landlords will voluntarily pass along savings under Proposition 13 to tenants rather than risk local and state legislation.

Michael Gruenke of Affiliated Cities Apartment Association indicated last week that apartment owners have not done a good job in getting that message across.

Referring to landlords' meetings last week in Los Angeles, Gruenke said, "The main principle there is to pass through your savings. However you do it, it must be done and it must be communicated to your tenants that you're going to do it."

However, he said that although some apartment owners are making plans to pass along savings, others are waiting until the state Supreme Court hears challenges to Proposition 13 and until they calculate the impact of higher fees enacted by local cities.

Affiliated Cities Apartment Association represents mainly small apartment owners — 12-15 units on the average, Gruenke said — in 17 cities in east Los Angeles County and west San Bernardino County. Members number 525-550, Gruenke noted.

The association is the local chapter of the statewide California Apartment Association, which he said is working with the California Housing Council and California Association of Realtors for voluntary approaches.

Gruenke spelled out four approaches the apartment association is advising landlords are available to pass along savings:

- Rent stabilization in which rents would be frozen at current levels for one or two years.

- Rebates in the form of a 50 percent reduction off this December's rents.

- Rent rollbacks calculated according to the net monthly savings per unit from lower property taxes after figuring additional expense for increased municipal fees and possibly other rising costs.

- Capital improvements aimed at upgrading the rental units.

The state apartment association and other organizations in the new Housing Industry Task Force for Renter Relief began late last week operating a "rent crisis hotline" that renters may call to report recent increases.

Gruenke said the number, (800) 381-6601, is staffed 9 a.m.-9 p.m. daily. He explained task force representatives will note tenants' complaints about increased rents and make an effort to find out why payments were hiked while industry groups are saying hold the line.

However, he added that some landlords may be entitled to higher rents and pointed out that "95 percent of owners have not realized anything yet" in the way of Proposition 13 savings.

Impound accounts — monthly payments to lending institutions as security on annual property tax bills — have not been reduced, he said.

Along with the pending suits against the property-tax limitation initiative, apartment owners have not received their property tax bills for 1978-79, further clouding the picture.

A representative of the San Bernardino County assessor's office said letters telling property owners their valuations, using 1975-76 as the base year, will be mailed out in the first two weeks of August. Property tax bills will be mailed Nov. 1 as usual, he added.

Gruenke — who is president of a property management firm in Upland — noted, "I've heard of just one or two owners who have made a concrete statement that 'this is what we are going to do.'"

As the owner of an apartment building in south Pomona, Gruenke indicated he is personally leaning toward rent stabilization because his units are already going for $20 a month below comparable apartments.

However, he said he and other owners will probably choose whatever approach is "easily understood and accepted by tenants."

He commented, "I think we all feel it — without a doubt the pressure is there. It doesn't sit well with the organized apartment associations that because a handful of people are raising rents in a period like this there may be state and local legislation adverse to everyone concerned."

"I'm just sitting here with a little bit of a feeling that everybody thinks we're bad guys — 'fat-cat landlords.' We're down there at the same rung as used car dealers or insurance men."

He added, "We haven't heard anybody clamoring that the grocery market hasn't lowered its prices or the guy at the gas station or the Edison Co. (from their Proposition 13 savings)."

Local rents have risen more rapidly in recent years primarily due to large jumps in assessed valuation, Gruenke said.

He noted the cost of supplies, maintenance, utilities and insurance have also increased.

However, outside of higher property taxes, Gruenke said the biggest expanding cost has been higher mortgage payments for new buyers who purchase apartments at the higher values.

"The good effect of rental values rising is that it's just gotten to the point where people have been able to start building apartments (again)."

However, he added, "No matter what we do for several years — unless every builder in the state comes down here and builds apartments — we will be in an acute demand for apartments."

Presbyterian youth plan summer trip to Europe

Culminating three years of work, study and fund-raising, 14 high school students from the First Presbyterian Church of Upland will leave Aug. 8 on a 21-day trip to Europe.

The Global Villagers, a church youth group, will visit Zurich, Geneva, Lucerne and Bern, Switzerland; Freiburg, West Germany; Colmar and Mulhouse, France; and Lugano, Italy.

A youth group under the direction of the Rev. Thomas Norton of Bern will host the Global Villagers and travel with the Upland contingent. Youths from Scotland will join the two groups.

Theme for the trip is "to be a guest." The youths from three nations will spend several days at a retreat center in the Swiss Alps discussing this theme and showing slides and photographs of their homelands.

The Global Villagers will visit shrines in Geneva and Zurich that were important to the Protestant Reformation and will live one week with families in Bern, the Swiss capital.

Those taking the trip are: Eric Bunch, Peggy French, Shelly Frink, Sandy Gault, Drew Hutton, Janet McElhoo, Richard Nelson, Vickie Reay, John Richardson, Jeff Roberts, Nancy Scott, Cindy Vanderwil, Ray Warner and Eric Westmoreland.

Marcia and Robert Flagg and Rich Taylor are the group advisers also making the trip.

The Global Villagers are First Presbyterian's fifth work-study-travel group to travel abroad and learn about the church's mission.

The youths raised money through annual Christmas tree sales, a recycling program and several rummage sales.

Practice marching, playing -- without school credit

46 students compete for band positions

By Don Green

Out of uniform but usually in step, 46 students seeking spots in the Upland High School Highlander Marching Band are winding up seven weeks of marching on the school parking lot and football field.

Band director Gregg Sisk said turnout has been excellent although the summer session is being offered for the first time without class credit — since summer school was eliminated under Proposition 13 cutbacks.

He noted only one student dropped out, leaving 41 incoming freshmen and five transfer students in the program.

Some 15 returning band members are helping out with the drilling and brushing up on their own marching skills, Sisk said. Members of the all-female "tall flags" auxiliary have also joined the weekday practices, which continue through Aug. 4.

Sisk described the band students as dedicated and said they apparently are not concerned that all the summer marching will not count as a credited class.

He pointed out new students must qualify to join the band by passing a series of tests. Sisk listens while each musician plays a competition march from memory and watches how they march and respond to commands.

The new students have not performed in a marching band before, Sisk said, noting that the time needed to pick up the steps varies from individual to individual.

Yellow stripes exactly 22½ inches apart on asphalt outside the band room are used by students to practice their strides, which Sisk described as a heel-toe glide step.

Repetition is one of the keys to learning the routines, Sisk noted.

He said the musicians concentrate solely on marching in the first part of the summer session and only begin playing their instruments during the third week.

He starts the new students off with stationary commands, proper "faces," posture and military poise. Various sections of the band split up to practice flanks, turns and counter marches (reversing direction).

Sisk said the band practices the block formation as one group later in the morning workouts. The newcomers begin to resemble the coordinated unit football fans see during the fall sometime in the fourth or fifth week, he explained.

However, Sisk added that 10-15 percent of the marchers still have problems at this time.

The students started practicing half-time drills on the football field this week, but Sisk pointed out that the musicians will not learn a complete show until the fall.

Along with the marching sessions 8-10 a.m. five days a week, students who work during the day rehearse Tuesday nights.

Sisk said the full band comes together during a "hectic" first week of classes, when about 100 students show up for the regular class period and practices Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Because Upland High School's first football game comes at the end of that first week, he explained, 100 uniforms must be fitted and 200 shoes bought along with the practice.

The full band is joined by six bagpipers under the direction of

Demand for apartments remains high in the West End

A spot check of some of the larger complexes in the West End indicates that the vacancy rate for apartments continues to be low and apparently few apartment managers have been notified of owners' plans for passing along Proposition 13 benefits to tenants.

Of the nine managers or assistant managers contacted last week in Upland, Montclair, Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga, none reported more than a few current vacancies.

And none reported plans yet receiving any definite how apartment owners' property tax savings from Proposition 13 might be transferred to renters.

All said demand for apartments, whether designed for single adults or families, continues to be high and that when vacancies occur they are quickly filled.

Marie Seeling, assistant manager of the Apple Apartments, 1334 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland, said only one of the 232 units is currently empty and that one will be filled shortly.

She said the management of the Apple Apartments has received many inquiries from tenants on when possible rebates or other Proposition 13 benefits might be expected.

Leadership Housing Systems of Irvine, owner of the complex, has not yet indicated its plans, she added. The complex caters mainly to young, single adults.

Plaza Villa Apartments, 9200 Monte Vista St., Montclair, keeps waiting lists for its two- and three-bedroom family apartments, assistant manager Dwight Dunter said.

Dunter said vacancies occur every month, but are quickly filled. He said that between three and five units are currently empty.

Although owner R and H Management of Los Angeles has not formulated Proposition 13 plans, Dunter noted the firm has mailed a letter indicating tenants will receive benefits in one form or another.

Otto Malcolm — manager of a smaller complex, Cameo Apartments, 1333 N. Grove Ave., Ontario — reported none of 28 two- and three-bedroom units available.

"We could rent 15 more if we had them," he commented.

He said demand at this complex and neighboring units has always been heavy and credited the relatively unexpensive rent as an attraction for tenants.

Michael Gruenke — president of the area Affiliated Cities Apartment Association — estimated the vacancy rate for Montclair, Upland and Rancho Cucamonga as at or below 2 percent.

He noted he uses the industry's "true vacancy" factor — percentage of total income under the maximum potential if all units are occupied daily — in making his estimate.

Holding an open house?

It'll cost you.

Cost you a bundle if you're air conditioned. Because your air conditioner runs on electricity. And these days that's something worth conserving.

So when you turn on the cool, make sure you keep your cool.

When you step outside, shut the door after you. And be sure your windows are closed. Air conditioning the outdoors simply cools off the birds and the bees. At your expense.

Check your thermostat. It registers dollars as well as degrees. Try setting it a bit higher — 78° or more. Air conditioning should keep you comfortable, not cold.

Insulate your attic. If you don't, it's like leaving the lid off your ice chest. You lose your cool.

There are other ways to take a load off and save money. Weather-seal your windows. Pull draperies on the sunny side. Plant shrubs and trees to shield direct sun rays.

And when a cool day comes along, turn your air conditioner off. Let Mother Nature take over the job. For free.

Qualifying for junior olympics

Youths swim six miles daily

By Peggy Olsen

On hot, smoggy days with temperatures climbing past the 100-degree mark, children of all ages seek relief in southland swimming pools.

Members of the Mt. Baldy Aquatic swim team are no exception. As much as anyone, the serious young swimmers enjoy the pleasures of summertime pool splashing.

But, they also practice every day, swimming up to six miles even when the mercury dips below the 60-degree mark.

For at least two team members, such persistence has paid off.

Nine-year-old Shane Brooks of La Verne and Jay Robnett, 15, of Upland have qualified for competition in the Amateur Athletic Union's Junior Olympics scheduled during August at Cypress, California.

Several more team members are expected to qualify at the group's AB swim meet for AAU Eastern Section swimmers Saturday and Sunday at Chaffey High School in Ontario.

Actually, the meet will have an international flavor since teams from Germany and Mexico have accepted invitations to attend.

Local swimmers have already participated in a championship meet sponsored by the Mexican government in Acapulco. And, they plan to compete in Germany next year.

The idea for the exchange meet mushroomed after Herbert and Roswitha Brooks took Shane to Germany for Christmas. In Berlin, the La Verne swimmer trained with members of the Z88 team.

Training there, Shane recalls, was basically the same as in the United States with the exception that German swimmers swim in the water just three days each week. Two days are spent in "dry land training," using machines to exercise muscles.

While watching her son train, Mrs. Brooks suggested the exchange meet to the German coach.

"The idea grew and caught like wildfire," according to Boots Barranco, ways and means chairwoman for Mt. Baldy Aquatics.

Eighteen Z88 team members and six adults will be hosted by local club members who have planned an American picnic in the park and visits to Disneyland for their guests.

The local exchange meet will be filmed by Channel 2 television and has been featured in the magazine, "Swim World."

"It has attracted much attention," noted Mrs. Brooks, who is president of the Mt. Baldy Aquatics parent organization.

German teams, she commented, can more easily travel to the United States than U.S. teams can travel abroad because the German government subsidizes athletic teams. In fact, Mrs. Brooks said, the U.S. is one of the few countries that does not subsidize amateur athletics.

Both the Brookses and Mrs. Barranco contend that government subsidy of athletes is desirable because it enables constant training without financial worry.

The exchange meet is one more example of the fact that Mt. Baldy Aquatics is a "special, unique club," said Mrs. Barranco. Club members have engaged in a variety of activities that "take us out of the realm of being just another athletic club," she added.

For example, team members recently participated in a Swim-A-Thon, earning a total of $4,000.

Seven-year-old Erik Fleming swam 150 laps, almost two miles, to earn top money, while Shane swam about three miles to become the second highest money raiser.

Both boys were presented medals from the International Swimming Hall of Fame.

A portion of the proceeds was contributed to the Hall of Fame's travel fund, while the remainder was used to send five students from Dominga High School, a school for handicapped children, to the Special Olympics.

Mt. Baldy swimmers also worked with the Dominga team in an effort to help improve speed and style.

Explains Mrs. Barranco: "We want to build champions, but we are also interested in building character."

Most swimmers begin the climb toward championship by joining the team as novice swimmers. Each then works individually to achieve times established by AAU for C, B, AA, and AAA swimmers.

"It's very prestigious, I think, for the kids (to achieve) AAU times," said Mrs. Brooks, adding that the swimmers constantly compete with themselves to achieve faster speed.

To qualify for Junior Olympic competition, Mrs. Brooks explained, swimmers must achieve AAA times.

In this year's event, Shane will compete in the 100 and 50 meter butterfly events for 9-10 year olds, while Jay, the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Robnett, will swim the 100 and 200 meter backstroke in the 15-18 year old category.

Shane began swimming with the Mt. Baldy team at age seven after the La Verne Recreation Department swim team coach suggested he had unusual ability.

Jay has been a member of the local group for a year and a half, but has been swimming competitively for six years. He broke the freshman-sophomore record for the 100 meter backstroke at the Covina Invitational swim meet recently.

The goal of most swimmers, Mrs. Brooks commented, is to be recognized as a national swimmer and to participate in the Olympics.

"I know it's beyond me, but the Olympics are always in the back of my head," confirmed Jay.

To become a champion requires work and training, Jay said and added during training and in competition "you think you're gonna die and you're always exhausted before you're finished."

"The true champ comes through," he said, "when you keep working even though exhausted."

Board studies problem of county operations

By PETER WONG

Supervisors agreed Monday to consider assuming direct responsibility for the operation of county departments and agencies, despite a warning that it may encourage political interference with the professionals hired to run them.

Although the supervisors didn't say so openly, it appeared to be their initial response to a recommendation of the 1977-78 grand jury.

The grand jury's final report says, "Each member of the board of supervisors should be responsible for specified departments of county operations."

Supervisor James L. Mayfield of Apple Valley made the proposal.

He said he wasn't satisfied with the overall performance of the six agencies created between 1971 and 1974 to oversee the management of more than 50 county departments.

"I have talked to so many county employees on the line... who have indicated they've tried to communicate ideas to the board about how to save money," Mayfield said.

"And they tell me quite often that those ideas are shortstopped at the agency level and never get to the administrative office or get to our board."

In its report, the 1977-78 grand jury said the supervisors rely on the county administrative officer (Earl Goodwin) and agency administrators "instead of assuming individual responsibility for being informed and knowledgeable about particular departments."

Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa said Mayfield's proposal would be a good one if it brings about better management of county government.

But Hansberger said that approach has caused problems in Los Angeles County, where supervisors have direct responsibility for several county departments.

"Instead of being a good manager, you tend to 'protect' your department if you're not careful," Hansberger said.

"The thing I question about your plan — and I don't say I'm against it — is that I sure would not like to take over the problems of Mr. Goodwin," Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland told Mayfield.

Kamansky said the supervisors should not get involved in the daily tasks of county department and agency heads "when they're being paid to do a job." If county officials aren't doing their job, he said, the supervisors have the authority to replace them.

Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino agreed with Hansberger. Townsend said if a supervisor were given general authority over a department or agency, "it becomes a coveted interest of that board member."

"I would think that would only tend to magnify that type of parochialism," he said.

Tax notices to be mailed

New property assessment notices will be mailed in late July or early August, San Bernardino County Assessor Robert J. Herbin has announced.

The new notices were made necessary after Proposition 13 passed. The state constitutional amendment will limit property taxes to about 1 percent of a property's full market value in 1975, plus 2 percent annual inflation.

Further information may be obtained by calling the assessor's West End office in Ontario (988-1361).

Learn how to collect

Cal State, San Bernardino will offer a one-day workshop on collecting antiques and memorabilia Aug. 5, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 202 of the Physical Sciences Building.

Those interested are encouraged to pre-register by contacting the Office of Continuing Education at Cal

INFORMATION — Harvey Mudd College students Ron Akeo (right) of Upland, and Robert Molony of New York gather data from 5,000-to-1 scale model of a computer writing head and tape. The two students, both involved in the college's Engineering Clinic, are working on a study for IBM, examining how more information can be packed onto computer tapes and disks.

Study improves data systems

Ron Akeo of Upland, a student at Harvey Mudd College, spent part of last year trying to find ways to pack more information on computer tapes and disks.

The study for IBM was one of 18 projects undertaken this past year in the Engineering Clinic at Harvey Mudd College.

The Engineering Clinic is a unique program in which undergraduate students handle research, design and development assignments for major industries and public agencies.

The IBM-financed study is a continuing one in which students are looking at the properties of a computer tape or disk. The initial phase of the project was the construction of a 5,000-to-1 scale apparatus that simulates a head transferring information to a magnetic medium. The scaled-up system allows the students to analyze what is actually happening when the head writes and reads computerized information.

The magnetic disk is somewhat similar to a phonograph record. When more grooves are added to the record, the groove becomes smaller and the phonograph head will have difficulty picking up the true sound, creating cross-talk.

The three-year study was reviewed at a recent international magnetics and electronics conference held in Florence, Italy.

San Diego diocese separates, new 2-county unit established

The counties of San Bernardino and Riverside have formed the new Catholic diocese of San Bernardino. Father Phillip F. Straling, pastor of Holy Rosary Church in San Bernardino, has been named the first bishop of the new diocese. San Bernardino and Riverside counties were formerly part of San Diego diocese.

The official announcement was made in Washington, D.C. by Archbishop Jean Jadot, apostolic delegate, who represents of Pope Paul VI in the United States.

The diocese of San Bernardino will occupy 27,293 square miles, with 235,665 Catholics out of a total population of 1.2 million residents. Some 128 diocesan priests, 43 religious priests and 282 sisters serve a total of 85 parishes and one mission. Nearly 9,000 children attend Catholic elementary and secondary schools in the two counties.

The action reduces the diocese of San Diego to San Diego and Imperial counties, covering 8,496 square miles.

The San Diego diocese has 354,453 Catholics in a total population of 1.7 million people. There are 87 parishes and three missions, with nearly 13,000 students attending Catholic schools in the diocese.

Bishop-elect Straling, is a native of San Bernardino. He was baptized in Holy Rosary Church, which will be the cathedral of the new diocese.

A 1951 graduate of Newman High School, Fontana, he studied for the priesthood at St. Francis Seminary and Immaculate Heart Seminary, both in San Diego.

Straling received his bachelor's degree in philosophy from the University of San Diego and a master's degree in counseling from San Diego State University.

He was assistant at St. George's Parish, Ontario, in 1959 and then was assigned to the faculty of St. John's Academy (high school for boys) in El Cajon.

He has also served as campus chaplain at San Diego State University, executive secretary of the second diocesan synod for the diocese of San Diego, and pastor of Holy Rosary Parish in San Bernardino.

The Most Rev. Leo T. Maher will remain bishop of the diocese of San Diego.

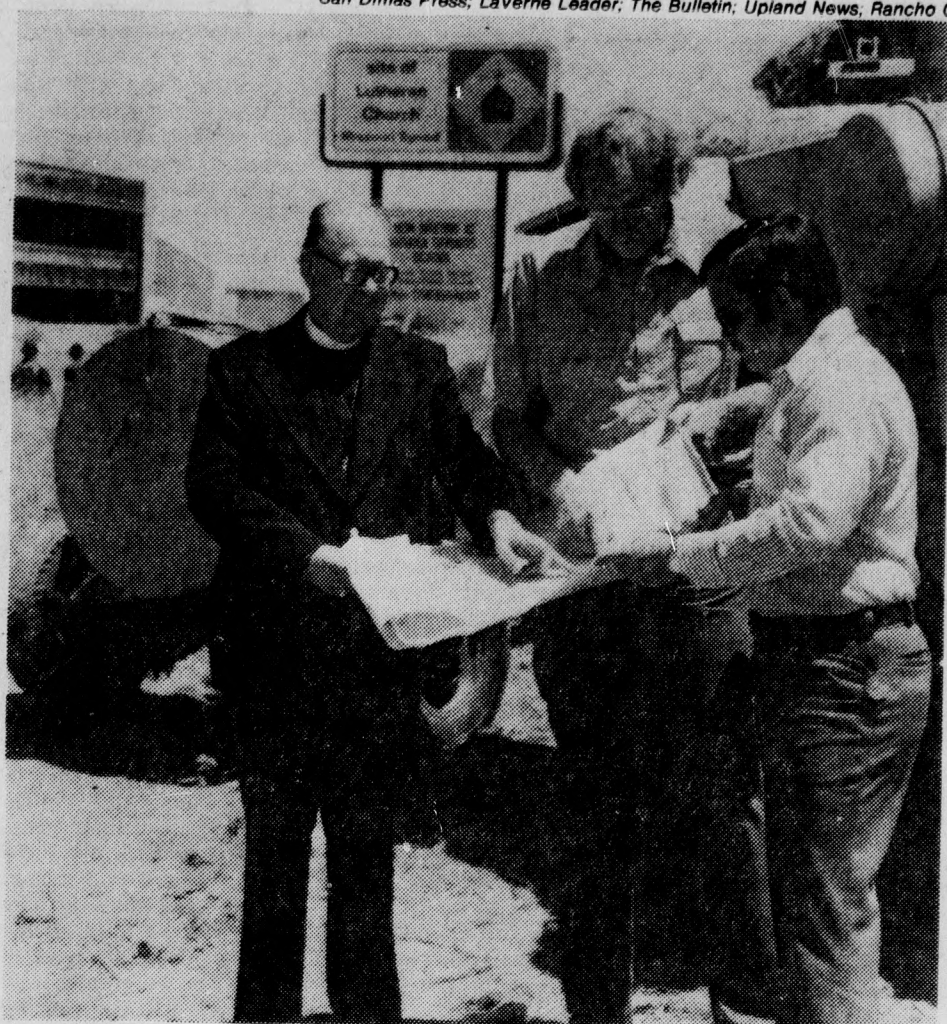

Holy Rosary parish, now serving as the cathedral of the new diocese, is celebrating its golden jubilee this year.

The parish is the third oldest established in the Inland Empire, preceded by St. Bernardine in 1867 and Our Lady of Guadalupe in 1926.

The initial parish boundaries extended north from 18th Street to the crests of the San Bernardino Mountains, five miles east to Highland, and as far west as Fontana.

The parish along with Pomona Valley was included in the Los Angeles diocese.

As Southern California began to grow in the 1930s, the San Diego diocese was created under Bishop Charles F. Buddy and included parishes in the Inland Empire.

Upland grad in drama

Elder Thomas Schnobelen, 21, a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has been selected to participate in the 1978 Hill Cumorah Pageant to be held through Saturday in Palmyra, N.Y.

He is currently serving in the New York Rochester Mission of the church.

Before accepting the call to serve for two years with the church as a missionary, Schnobelen attended Upland High School. He received the California State Scholarship and attended California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, for two years.

While going to these schools, Schnobelen took three years of seminary and institute classes.

After having served on his mission for six months, Schnobelen said, "I'm extremely grateful for the opportunity I have to serve on a mission. I'm looking forward to the pageant and am excited about being able to participate."

Private business could cost government less

By Richard L. Lesher
President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

You might think — if you're sufficiently naive — that Congress would jump at an opportunity to save the U.S. taxpayer $1 billion a year and help our small business people, both at the same time and all without any diminution of public services.

You might think so, but it doesn't work that way. At least not when the required action would violate the first rule of the federal government: Save the bureaucrats first and let the public fend for itself.

The issue is "contracting out." Time after time, it has been proven that private businesses can furnish the same or better service for less cost — in comparison to letting government do the job 20-30 percent less, in fact. Thus, there is a general policy that the government should seek a private contractor for as much government work as is practical.

There are roughly four exceptions to this policy:

- No satisfactory source is available outside the government.
- The agency involved or another federal agency can provide the same product or service at a lesser cost.
- Contracting out would disrupt or delay an agency's program.

— Contracting out would jeopardize national security.

As the wily will immediately recognize, these four exceptions are big enough to drive an outrage through. And there's a lot of traffic of that kind.

For example, "national security" would seem to be the least arguable category. And yet, while government guards are deemed necessary at the Central Intelligence Agency's headquarters, the Pentagon, and the State Department, the government's nuclear testing facility in Nevada has somehow managed to survive with a private guard service for the past 13 years.

But exotic exceptions aside, the real field of battle in this game involves comparative cost estimates. When private contractors submit a bid for government work, they must calculate all of their costs, including federal and local taxes, wages and fringe benefits, and whatever they hope to make when all the other expenses are paid.

You can see immediately that private contractors start with two disadvantages: They have to pay taxes that a government agency would not have to pay, and they hope to make a profit, whereas the government makes only losses.

Even so, given an honest contest, the private contractor can usually come out the low bidder. That distresses the bureaucrats — especially the public employee unions or "bargaining groups." If too much work goes to the private bidder, then there will be less need for federal employees.

Well, how does the private contractor still wind up as low bidder? Simple: Federal pay and fringe benefits are so far superior to pay in the private sector that even taxes and profit seldom close the gap. Private actuaries, for example, have calculated that the federal pension system is equal to a generous 42 percent of an employee's salary. That figure compares to 9.2 percent for the private sector.

Obviously, if the true cost of federal fringes is taken into account, then the government cost for doing a given job will seldom be as low as the private bidder's cost.

But who establishes the "official" cost figure for these federal fringe benefits? The federal government, of course. Overall, that figure has been pegged at an unrealistic 14.1 percent of federal pay. It is slated to rise soon to a slightly less unrealistic 20.4 percent of federal pay.

But, under an amendment passed hurriedly last year, the Department of Defense is required to use a figure of only 8.4 percent. And let me stress here that we are talking about services like laundry and trash collection, not combat infantry. No service relating directly to military preparedness may be contracted out.

On top of that ridiculously fictitious cost estimate, Congress last year passed a one-year moratorium on any contracting out by Defense where existing federal jobs might be jeopardized. It may be extended.

According to a recent study by the Rand Corporation, the Defense Department alone could — if it wanted to — save $1 billion a year by using private firms to perform work now done by 250,000 civil service employees.

It's enough to make you go to war.

(Lesher is president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.)

SALT important to future

By Alan Cranston

I would like the message to reach the leaders of the Soviet Union that if they really want SALT they should reappraise very carefully the policies they are following.

I think SALT is the most important single issue in our relationship. I wish the Soviet leaders would share that view, as they sometimes say they do.

But if that is sincerely what they believe, then I urge them to think through once again the difficulties being created for SALT by the actions they are taking such as Soviet policies on human rights, on dealing with dissidents, on the trials, on the sentences, on emigration ... and Soviet adventures in Africa and their collaboration with the Cubans there.

We should keep SALT separate from those other problems. There should be no linkage, as far as I'm concerned. Unfortunately there is linkage. The atmosphere has soured to the point where it is more difficult to negotiate and where it is certainly more difficult for the Senate to be expected to approve even a good SALT treaty.

It would be a catastrophe if a good SALT treaty were rejected for reasons unrelated to SALT.

I advocate suspending the transfer of advanced technology to the Russians because of their human rights behavior. I don't like the tit-for-tat approach to world affairs, but sometimes it seems to be the only approach that may lead to better results.

Though the issue of human rights may not have been handled perfectly by either side, the basic principle is one to which virtually all Americans are deeply dedicated.

The Senate has no plans to take up a SALT agreement this year. But if it did, it would be impossible to ratify an agreement, given the atmosphere, now, this week, this month. It will be difficult next year, but it is not hopeless.

It all depends on how the atmosphere develops and what it's like by then. It depends on whether or not people can be persuaded that there should not be linkage.

But I'm afraid but at they can't be persuaded. There are those of us who wish there were no linkage, who favor having no linkage.

President Carter takes that position, so do I, so do others. But the fact of life is that people become so upset over other issues that they find it impossible to consider SALT by itself.

I deplore the deterioration in Soviet-American relations which endangers programs in our mutual interest that take cooperation rather than confrontation.

There are other issues that are very important in Soviet-American relations, but I think SALT is the most important because if we resolve SALT and avoid a nuclear arms race, with all its costs and dangers, and avert nuclear war, we'll have time and opportunity to deal with our other problems.

If we fail on SALT and the consequence is a nuclear war or a greatly heightened arms race with greater dangers, then our ability to deal with other problems would be greatly injured by the distraction of money and attention, or destroyed if we have nuclear war.

The escalation of the arms race that would follow a SALT failure would mean we (United States and USSR) would each spend more money, we would each have less to spend on housing and health and education, and we would each be less secure and face graver dangers that somehow by a mistake, a miscalculation an escalation of some conflict — maybe started by third or fourth parties — we'll find ourselves in nuclear war. It's an incredibly dangerous situation.

(Cranston, a Democrat, represents California in the U.S. Senate. His remarks on SALT were made in an interview with Vitaly Gan, Washington Correspondent for Tass, the Soviet news agency.)

National Guard honors Ayala

State Sen. Ruben S. Ayala (D-32) was honored in Ontario when he was appointed as a colonel-in-chief, an honorary position within the California National Guard.

The presentation was made by Maj. Gen. Frank J. Schober Jr., the commanding general of California's 25,000-member National Guard.

Ayala, a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, saw action in the South Pacific during World War II with the First Marine Division.

Office workers want fair pay

D.S. of Pasadena writes: "I'm tired of the hypocrisy of people who say they believe in equal pay for equal work and yet condone the menial wages paid to clerical workers. Many of us are well educated and highly skilled, yet get less pay than the janitors in our buildings. How can they justify such low pay for clericals?"

You have touched a very sensitive point to millions of women office workers. Women are outraged by demands of jobs such as that sent out by one public institution recently.

Among the requirements for a Library - Media Clerk II were: the applicant know office methods, equipment practices and procedures, letter writing, correct English usage, major areas relating to libraries and media centers such as acquisitions, cataloging and processing, circulation, film scheduling, standard library practices, bibliographic tools, and procedural manuals.

The pay offered for a 40-hour week was $736 per month. In the same week, the institution listed a job as a custodian with no requirements at a salary of $754 per month.

Some employers have taken the obvious steps to equalize pay and opportunity for women clericals through affirmative action programs. Many have found such action alleviates the frustration of women workers and results in higher production overall.

Some far-sighted executives reward responsible clericals with jobs as administrative assistants, which not only pay more but launch the employee into managerial careers.

However, many more women whose hopes were raised that they too might move upward are chafing after years of hard work and frustration. Managers are willing to open up desirable positions to only a very few women.

Some economists argue that if women workers were paid according to the logical, comparable value of "men's work," a cheap source of labor would no longer be available. But relinquishing this labor tight economy. supply is not apt to be On the positive side, their thrust for the democratic right to equal opportunity if they were not being taken seriously. After all, serious opposition is a measure of serious consideration. And the constituency for Women workers are beginning to understand their potential power, and that fact is not going unnoticed. # Remaining calm in sinking car is key to escaping drowning

If you find yourself trapped inside a partially submerged vehicle, don't panic — there are ways to escape, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Donald D. Treichler, the auto club's public safety manager, said persons caught in that dilemma should stay cool but quickly follow steps that may lead them to freedom.

"Floods, brake failure, driver error, missing guard rails and icy bridges can propel a car into the water," Treichler said. "And many people mistakenly think an automobile will immediately sink to the bottom, leaving its occupants hopelessly trapped inside. Fortunately, that's not true."

Even if it takes a nose dive, the vehicle will usually return to a horizontal floating position after the initial plunge. And though it's possible for the vehicle to sink in a matter of seconds, many will float for two or three minutes — plenty of time to escape, Treichler continued. That is, if those inside remain calm.

"Obviously, the chances of escape are greatly reduced for someone who's been injured during the impact. That's just one good reason to make a habit of buckling up when you enter the car. The extra second it takes to undo a safety belt places you in far less danger than being left unconscious in a sinking car. Ask any stunt driver."

Water will begin to enter the vehicle through vents and openings around brake and accelerator pedals. Almost from the instant the car hits the water, opening a door will be impossible because of water pressure pushing against it.

"A window, then, becomes the logical escape hatch," Treichler continued. "If the water has not yet reached window level, simply roll down a window and crawl out."

"If, however, water is already too high, roll the window down slowly, thus allowing water to surge inside the vehicle. When the pressure equalizes, you should be able to open a door or swim through the window opening."

If the car is not completely horizontal — most will sink engine first — an occupant might be able to crawl to the back seat and roll down a rear window that's above water level. An air pocket usually forms at the highest point in the passenger compartment. This will allow some extra moments for escape.

In some cases, power windows won't operate if the electrical system shorts out. Treichler said there's still a chance the window can be broken with a sharp tool, a shoe or whatever is handy. Also, there will usually be enough of an air pocket to sustain a person for some time.

"If you haven't escaped before the car sinks completely, turn the lights on. Although they sometimes short out immediately, working ones may attract help."

"According to Family

San Dimas Press; LaVerne Leader; The Bulletin; Upland News; Rancho Cucamonga Times; Montclair Tribune

Safety magazine, the lights of a car submerged in a Michigan river burned for a half hour. And in submerged vehicle tests, some cars have retained sufficient air to sustain life for an hour. Records show that occupants of submerged cars have survived for up to 20 minutes," he added.

Control summer pests with good housekeeping strategies

Have you swatted your first mosquito? Doused an ant with a household spray? The summer invasion of insects is under way.

For example, make sure all screens fit tightly and are free of holes. Open doors only long enough to enter or leave. Check family pets for ticks or fleas.

Most pests thrive on food, warmth and water — all elements that make a home livable. Since you can't eliminate these basic appeals, use preventive measure to keep unwanted guests from making your home their home.

— Good housekeeping is a must, inside and out. Keep the inside as clean and dry as possible, the outside well-painted and free of rubbish. Some pests love dirt; most love dampness, and all of them need a place to hide and breed.

— Pay special attention to the kitchen. Sweep up crumbs, wash dishes, glassware and utensils promptly, and store leftover foods in tightly covered containers. Given an open invitation to dine, pests will continue to live with you.

— Clean frequently around base boards, air vents and cracks and crevices in floors, and under stairwells. They are favorite breeding places for all kinds of pests.

— Also keep bathrooms clean and dry, as well as areas around basement sinks, water heaters and humidifiers. Pests need water as well as food.

— Keep trash and garbage buildup to a minimum. If it must pile up between pickups, store it away from the house. You'll want to keep those invaders at a distance.

— Don't be fooled into believing your new trash compactor will solve the problem. No matter how often you squeeze them or hit them with disinfectant, pests are hardy creatures and can turn your compactor into their own motel.

— Check grocery bags and soft drink containers carefully when unpacking food. Roaches or ants in pairs may be hitchhiking a ride to start up another family in your home.

— Also carefully check screens in windows and doors, including attic windows. There may be holes that insects can pass through, or larger ones where mice, squirrels or other animals may enter.

— Look for holes or cracks along the foundation or around water pipes. Plug those you find with steel wool. Stuffing them with newspaper will not help because rats and mice simply eat it as food.

— Try to keep dirty clothing from piling up, and never store garments that have not been cleaned. It's an open invitation to moths, silverfish and other pests to gorge themselves.

— Vacuum drapes and cornices and the underside of furniture frequently. Empty the bag promptly — outdoors.

— Purchase only small quantities of food and store it in containers that insects or rodents can't penetrate. Any food contaminated by insects should be thrown away.

— Keep wood surfaces of your home well painted and check frequently for dampness or signs of rot. Make sure gutters are clear and downspouts keep water well away from the foundation. Remember, many of those pests love dampness.

— Consider an annual inspection by a pest control specialist. They are experts on all pests ... from termites and carpenter ants to roaches and rodents ... and can help prevent an infestation or get rid of those that already are invaders. For a free folder on "How to Select and Use Pest Control Services," write: National Pest Control Association, Suite 1100, 8130 Leesburg Pike, Vienna, Va. 22180.

You and Your Pet

Birds make popular pets

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M., Manger of Veterinary Services Norden Laboratories

Before recent laws restricting importation of parakeets, canaries and other foreign finches, these small birds were among the pets most commonly offered for sale. They are somewhat harder to obtain now, but just as popular.

Before you buy a bird, consider its home — the cage. The cage size will depend upon the type of bird you want. It should be big enough to allow the bird to jump and hop around, with perches of different diameters on different levels. A rough-surfaced perch or two will help keep the bird's nails short and scrape mineral deposits from the feet.

Plan to put the cage in a draft-free spot that receives bright light rather than direct sun.

A caged bird is completely dependent upon you and will need a regular supply of clean water and fresh seed. The smaller birds do well with most packaged seed mixtures supplemented by pieces of apple, spinach or lettuce once a week.

Parrots and other larger birds require a diet of cracked oats and corn, millet and other whole seeds, with some fresh fruit or vegetables.

Birds only eat as much as they need so you can keep several days' seed in the cage. Don't make the mistake of thinking that the seed cup is full of seeds when it contains only empty hulls. If you blow gently into the feeder, hulls will usually float away and let you see how much seed is left.

Birds have other dietary needs too. They do not have teeth and need fine gravel or grit to aid in grinding seed in the gizzard, a special part of the digestive tract.

Since most seed mixtures are deficient in calcium, you should also put a whole cuttlefish bone in the cage or add finely crushed oyster shell to the seed. If you wish to breed your pet or "produce" an exceptional singer, your veterinarian may suggest special food supplements.

Finally, if your pet is not up to par, do not hesitate to seek professional attention.

Lincoln memorabilia housed in Redlands shrine

Ruth Hollinrake of Redlands and Glenn Burroughs of Rialto walked slowly around the outdoor wings of the Lincoln Memorial Shrine in Redlands, reading each quotation engraved on the limestone walls.

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it." (Address at Cooper Institute.)

"Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves; and, under a just God, can not long attain it." (Address at Bloomington, Ill.)

"Stand with anybody that stands right. Stand with him while he is right and part with him when he goes wrong." (Address at Peoria, Ill.)

"Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in us. Our defense is in the spirit which prized liberty as the heritage of all men, in all lands everywhere." (Address at Edwardsville, Ill.)

As the elderly couple stood at the entrance to the shrine located on the grounds of the A. K. Smiley Public Library on Vine Street in Redlands, Mrs. Hollinrake was asked, "Are you a Lincoln buff?"

"No," she said, "we just love him." Then the couple entered the eight-sided building which houses the only shrine to Lincoln west of the Mississippi River.

There, center stage and bigger than life is the reason the shrine was built by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watchorn in 1932. Built as a tribute to Lincoln it is also in memory of Emory Ewart Watchorn who died in 1920 at the age of 26.

The Carrara marble bust of Abraham Lincoln was sculpted by George Grey Barnard, an artist who studied at the Ecole National des Beaux Arts in Paris in the middle 1880s. His works can be found today in the Metropolitan Museum, the Carnegie Museum and the Pennsylvania State Capitol in Harrisburg. A copy of his Lincoln bust is on display in the Luxembourg Gallery in Paris.

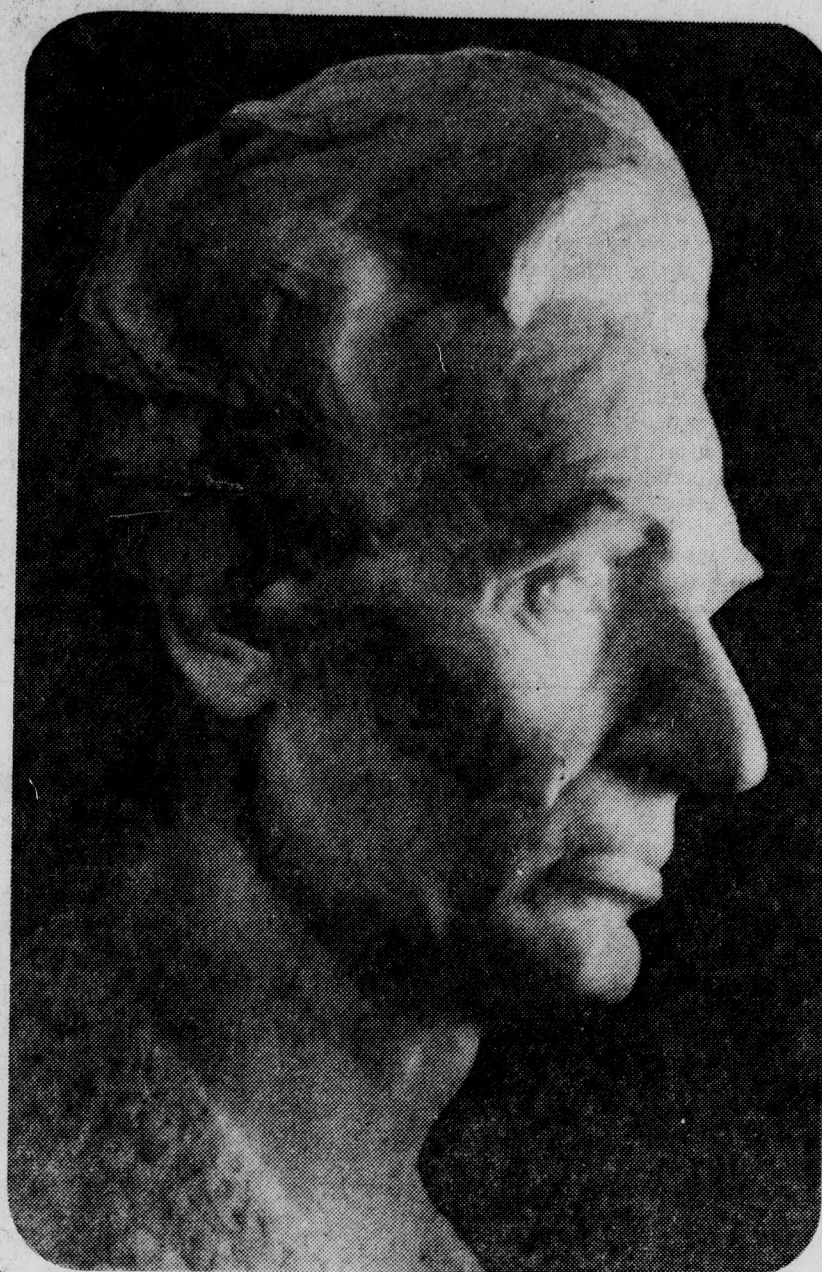

Watchorn bought the Barnard Lincoln in 1920 for $10,000. He built the shrine to house the famous head.

Although the bust and memorabilia inside the shrine stop the pages of history, the making of the building provides a history within a history.

Elmer Grey designed the shrine in 1931. Grey, who had employed Watchorn's son in his architect's office, constructed the building of reinforced concrete with Bedford Indiana limestone plates. The plates were inscribed with passages from Lincoln's most famous addresses.

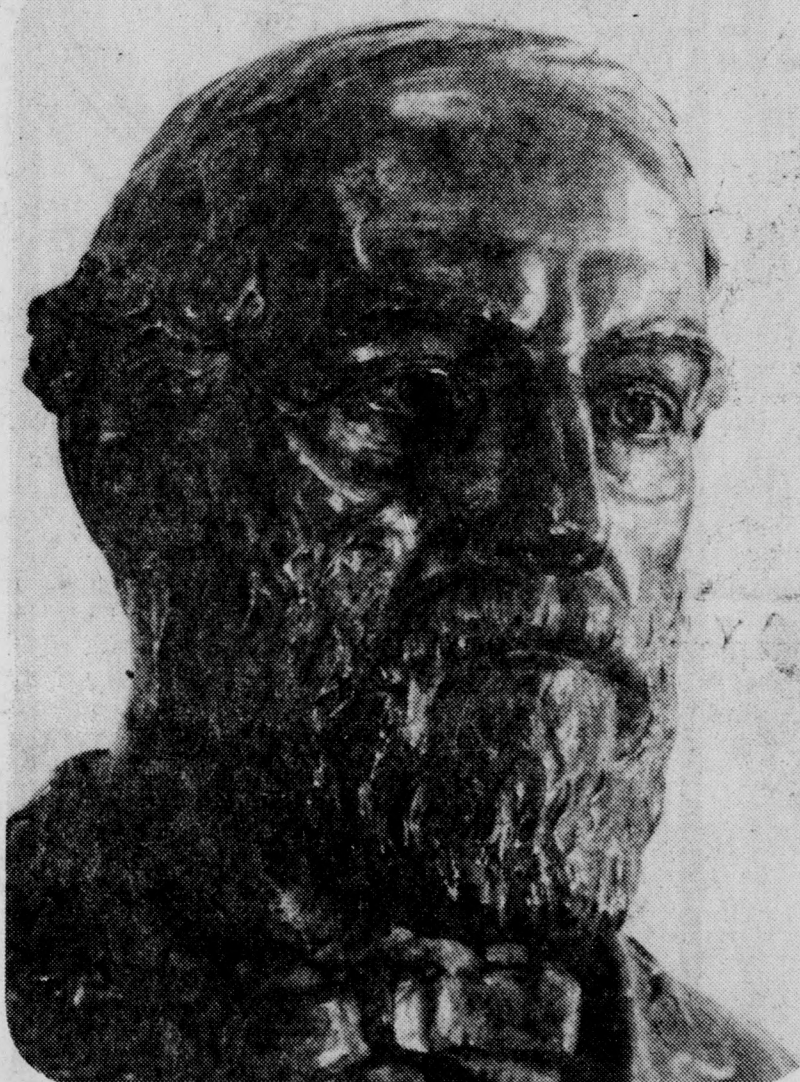

The interior of the shrine was filled with bookcases and furniture made of Circassian and American black walnut. Limestone rubbed with pumice was used for facings.

Watchorn paid Grey $59,881 to build the shrine. Grey is also known for his work on the Huntington Library, the Beverly Hills Hotel and the Community Playhouse in Pasadena. In addition to several private residences, Grey also Children's librarian Linda Larsen and library intern Frank Daseler take a break in a courtyard next to the Lincoln Memorial Shrine in Redlands. The shrine and its memorabilia is maintained by the A. K.

Smiley Public Library. Over the years, half a million visitors have examined the materials gathered and preserved for students, historians and those who want just a glimpse of history. The shrine is open 1 to 5 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays and closed on Sundays, Mondays and all holidays except Lincoln's birthday. Group tours are available by special appointment.

designed the chemistry building at the California Institute of Technology.

Ceiling murals in the shrine were painted on canvas by New York artist Dean Cornwell. Two of the murals depict Lincoln's greatest historical achievements — the preservation of the Union and his advocacy of freedom which led to the abolition of slavery in the south.

In all, Cornwell supplied eight paintings for the ceiling.

Between 1932 and the year of his death in 1944, Watchorn spent most of his time and money collecting Lincoln memorabilia.

He placed busts of Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant, formed by sculptor Paolo, at each side of the entrance to the shrine. The Lincoln bust, of course, remains the most important display in the building. In 1937, Watchorn added two fountains, designed by Los Angeles sculptor Merrill Gage, next to the shrine and highlighted them with two 12-foot wall wings of Indiana limestone.

Watchorn set up an endowment fund for the preservation of the Lincoln Memorial Shrine. The City of Redlands supplements this fund today.

Overseeing the entire collection of books, pamphlets, manuscripts, newspapers, photos, stamps, art, coins and Lincoln objects is Smiley Library archivist Dr. Larry E. Burgess.

A Lincoln authority, Burgess said, "Lincoln was a great figure who seemed larger than life. We have tried to capture a human person."

The exhibit is changed periodically since the shrine long ago outgrew the collection. The building holds only about 40 percent of the entire Redlands tribute to the sixteenth president. The rest of the memorabilia is stored in library vaults.

Adding to the collection is not an easy chore since finances are limited, so "we basically rely on gifts from donors," Burgess said. But there seems to be no shortage of Lincoln and Civil War material when the price is right, he added.

There have been over 5,000 biographies written about Lincoln, Burgess noted, with 10 or 12 major documentaries forming the base of the literature. He said the "easiest" book for the casual reader "to become acquainted with but not inundated with Lincoln" is a book published only last year by Stephen Oates titled "With Malice Toward None."

Burgess has been caretaker of the shrine since 1972. The greatest tribute to the man to whom the building is dedicated came from a woman who visited the building a few years ago.

She looked at the bust for quite a long time, examined a few other things and then came up to the desk and said, "He looks like the kind of man you could talk to."

"That's all she said before she left," Burgess said.

Prop. 13 scenario: humorous or real?

The effects of Proposition 13, California's tax revolt, are being felt throughout the state. Politicians who once vigorously opposed the ballot measure, suddenly became its champion — after the landslide victory.

Many persons have willingly made cuts in keeping with the spirit of Proposition 13; others have made cuts, but blamed the proposition for loss of services. Among the cuts have been:

The president of Western California State College Inc., called together his faculty to announce that all part-timers were eliminated, that 45 full-time faculty would be terminated, as well as the departments of history, English, and philosophy.

When asked if those cuts were't rather severe, the president replied, "We tried to be as humane as possible. We allowed all administrators to keep their jobs, and have maintained our million dollar football program without restriction."

At the Daily Bugle, managing editor Ben Lynotype announced that his newspaper was forced to eliminate all national and international news. He also announced that effective immediately, all investigative reporters were terminated.

"We didn't want to do any of this," he announced, "but we had no other choice."

News of the Little League, Aunt Emily's reunion, and the service club meetings have been retained, however.

Mt. Baldy Airlines announced that because of Proposition 13, it was forced to cut back its cockpit crew to one pilot, and eliminate all stewardesses. "This way," said the president from his villa on the French Riviera, "we won't have to raise our fares for quite a few weeks."

The Greenbriar City Council has eliminated all recreational activities planned for the summer. The Recreation Commission, which recommended elimination of the activities, will, nevertheless, be allowed to retain their jobs at full pay in order to plan for the fall layoffs.

Over in Yukonville, the city manager, in a tearful message to the news media, announced that he was going to have to layoff 55 city employees — some of whom have been employed by the city for 30 years.

But, there was a ray of sunshine in the administrator's eye — he also announced that not one of the 16 assistant city managers would lose their jobs.

Dr. Guy Nacologist, the state's leading obstetrician, announced that in keeping with the spirit of Proposition 13, he was now requiring all his patients to deliver their babies in eight months instead of nine months, thus saving a full month.

"I'm trying to do my best to cut down," Dr. Nacologist pronounced. "I'd like to take the full nine months, but with Proposition 13 cutbacks, it just isn't possible."

When asked if he had also considered lowering his fees, Dr. Nacologist looked at the interviewer and pointedly announced, "I've already done my share! What more can I do?"

At the prestigious University of Berkeley, a senior administrator announced that although the university was above the law, it, too, would try to cooperate with the spirit of Proposition 13.

The administrator announced that faculty who had previously taught two classes a semester would, henceforth, teach only one class each semester, but would supervise a low-paid teaching assistant on the other class.

"So what else is new?" asked one senior.

At that same university, the director of research sadly announced that research would suffer greatly with Proposition 13 cuts. Thus, to offset the losses, the university will be conducting research for the federal government and "any industry which wants to buy us," according to the director.

"I already thought the university was bought," said one cynic.

The Western Association of Realtors announced that they were cutting their commissions from six percent to five percent for one year, in gratitude to the people of the state for passing Proposition 13.

The Western Association of Appraisers, however, announced that the selling price of houses has just gone up 20 percent in the past month.

And, finally, this word from Amtrak, the nation's semi-serious passenger railroad service. Amtrak announced that it would keep fares exactly the same as they were before the passage of Proposition 13, and would not cut services, prompting an entire nation of people to proclaim, almost in unison, "WHAT services?"

(Wanderings is a personal comment column written by Dr. Walter Brasch, an award-winning journalist and editor-in-chief of Brasch and Brasch, Publishers Inc., a local book-publishing company.)

Hawaiian lemon chiffon pie

Easy pie perfect for summer

When the temperature is up and your energy is down, it's especially difficult to work up enthusiasm for making dessert. But there are times when guests are coming or dinner is a significant family occasion and something special is indicated.

This is the time to let a high quality convenience mix make up for lack of time. The energy-saving pie mixes that require no baking lend themselves to simple variations that make picture-pretty desserts suitable for any occasion.

Hawaiian Lemon Chiffon Pie is such a cool beauty, you may want to present it whole and serve it at the table. All you have to do to make it is add fresh pineapple chunks to lemon chiffon pie filling, then garnish the top with more pineapple, coconut and some of the graham crumbs reserved from the crunchy crust.

Hawaiian Lemon
Chiffon Pie

1 pkg. lemon chiffon pie mix
4½ tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
3 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups fresh pineapple chunks
½ cup flaked coconut

Combine graham crumbs from mix, 4½ tablespoons melted margarine and 3 tablespoons sugar. Reserve 1 tablespoon crumb mixture for garnish. Press remaining mixture firmly and evenly against bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. In large bowl blend filling mix and 2/3 cup boiling water 1 minute at lowest speed. Add ½ cup very cold water and beat 3 minutes at highest speed until stiff peaks form. Sprinkle chiffon mix packet gradually over filling, blending about 1 minute at lowest speed. Fold in 1 cup pineapple chunks. Spoon into crust. Top with remaining ½ cup pineapple chunks. Sprinkle coconut and reserved crumbs over pineapple. Chill at least 30 minutes in refrigerator. Store leftovers covered in refrigerator. 8 servings.

Strawberry Cheesecake
Dessert Squares

1 pkg. cheesecake pie mix with Sour Cream Topping
7½ tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
3 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups milk
1½ cups fresh or thawed, well-drained frozen whole strawberries
Combine graham crumbs from mix, 4½ tablespoons melted margarine and sugar. Press crumbs firmly against bottom of 8 or 9-inch square pan. In small bowl at lowest speed blend 1 cup milk and 3 tablespoons margarine with cheesecake filling until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at highest speed. Fold in 1 cup sliced strawberries. Spread evenly on crust. In small bowl blend sour cream topping with ½ cup milk; beat until smooth and thickened. Spread evenly over filling. Garnish with remaining strawberries. Chill at least 30 minutes. Store leftovers covered in refrigerator. 6 to 9 servings.

REFRESHING TREAT — Hawaiian Lemon Chiffon Pie is one of the easiest desserts to make during these hot, smoggy summer days. With little effort, this pie goes together by using a graham crumb crust and a package of lemon pie mix plus fresh (or canned) pineapple. Everyone will really enjoy this cool, refreshing treat.

America and America's forests have grown up together.

In 1765, a group of merchants met under the "Liberty Tree" to discuss independence.

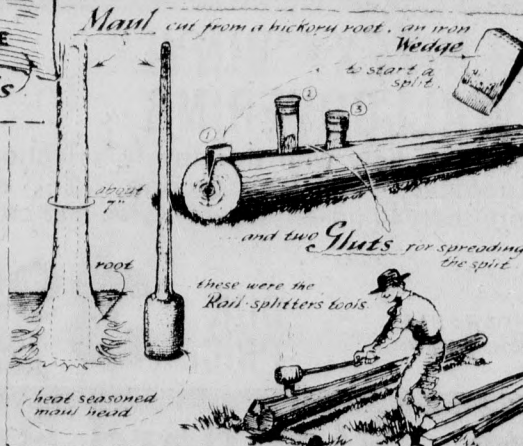

The pine tree shilling. It was America's first coin.

America's first flags bore trees as their emblems.

Wood gave our pioneers their furniture, medicine, fuel, homes, tools, weapons, toys.

Even our country's legends come from the forest.

Please be careful of fire. Because a country without its forests is a country without its future.
